

Good morning Gateway Guardians,

Here is our news for Thursday, Nov. 1st:

Attention first period reps! We need those blue stars! Please, if you have any blue stars that you haven't turned in, drop them off in Mrs. Walsh's room tomorrow morning!

Ms. Bus would like everyone to sign up for Fuel-up-to-play-60 by the end of November. If you do the challenges and record your information it will enter you into drawings for prizes. Please email me your information of username and password so you get credit for signing up and your name on the poster in the gym. We have received a lot from this program, especially from last year, it has given us new equipment for our PE department and I would like to continue getting this support for our PE program. Thanks to the 6 or 7 who have already signed up, hope to get your emails soon.

Everyone knows her. Oprah Winfrey's name is synonymous with talk shows. She is the queen of television talk shows and the richest woman in the world. Oprah Winfrey overcame tragic tribulation in her life to achieve success. Growing up in Milwaukee, her family was so poor that she wore sacks as clothing. She was also abused by members of her family. After running away from home at age 14, Oprah delivered a baby boy who died after birth. She didn't give up and went to public schools where she excelled. With the assistance of scholarships, Oprah went on to attend college and majored in journalism. One thing led to another and now she is in charge of a media empire that is worth $2.9 billion dollars.

What an inspirational woman. Thank you for your determination and your drive and for never giving up.

Remember Gateway, guard your character!
